Traffic Light Placed Back In Operation

City Decides to Use Signal Without Permit from State

The stop-and-go light was going again today. It was stopped Tuesday evening.

The city of Harrisburg, which installed a portable signal at Main and Poplar streets last Saturday on a trial basis, removed it late Tuesday after Vernon Kupel of the Carbondale office of the State Division of Highways told the city council that the city needed a permit from his office to install such a sign on a permanent basis.

And, said Kupel, the type the city was using is not the type the highway department gives permits for as a permanent device. But at 11:15 a. m. today the sig-nal was back on the job, moving traffic eastward, westward, north-The Agriculture Co ward and southward at Main and Poplar, which also is the intersecon of State Highways 13 and 34. ROCKEFELLERS BET ON

The big established oil-gas companies, however, always put their money on the Republicans. With a few minor exceptions such as Phillips Retroleum, which has a silent partnership with Democratic Sen. Bob Kerr of Oklahoma, they never bet on the Democrats.

And these big companies — the Rockefellers of Standard Oil, the Pews of Sun Oil, and the Mellons of Gulf Oil — are among some of the heaviest contributors to the GOP.

Officials, Plain Fans Pay Last Respects to Baseball Grand Old Man

PHILADELPHIA (P - Top baseball executives, government officials and just plain fans by the hundreds will file past the bier of Connie Mack tonight to pay their final respect to "the grand old man of baseball."

The body of the 93-year-old Mack will lie in state for about two and one-half hours at the Oliver Bair Funeral Home here. Connie's velvet lined casket will be placed among a bank of ferns and floral displays sent from all corners of the nation.

The viewing will be on the second floor of the mid-city funeral establishment, where ordinarily four viewings are held at the same time. Because of the expected throng, the Mack family has reserved all four parlors and an or-

October of three Chicago boys.

Parents of two of the boys were said to have agreed to the tests. The thre youths were arrested in a stolen automobile in Spring field, Ill. Police said they found an array of "torture instruments" in the automobile. The weapons were carving knives, a meat cleaver and two 18-inch long sticks with razor blade fragments imbedded Authorities said the three were questioned previously in the in-vestigation of the triple slaying of the three boys whose nude bodies were found in a ditch near a forest preserve here. But they were not given lie detector tests.

Gutknecht said he was not satisfied with the stories the three told to explain their weapons. The three were held in the Juvenile Home and then released in custody of their parents pending delinquency hearings.

Why hold back from the fun and thrill and pride of bossing a Buick - when you can boss such a big and strapping beauty for the price of a smaller car?

If you can afford any new car, you can afford this brawny Buick Special Sedan - for a very simple reason.

Hard to believe? Listen . . .

This Buick is priced within a few dollars of the well-known smaller cars-and actually costs less than some models of those very same cars. (The price we show here proves that.)

Want more proof? For two years in a row now, Buick has outsold every other car in America except two of those well-known smaller cars. And you can bet your bottom dollar that it takes bedrock prices to stay in the Top 3 of the nation's best sellers.

But even that isn't the whole story-not by a long shot.

Folks are buying Buicks in record numbers because they find in these big beauties a lot more automobile for the money.

They find here more styling freshness and distinction - more snap and ginger and power thrill - more comfort and luxury more ride stability and steadiness-and more structural solidity and pure automobile than the same money buys elsewhere.

So if you want to move into the big-car travel world at a small-car price - if you want to have the time of your motoring life with the lift and lilt and pride and prestige of a beautiful new Buick as your very own -what's holding you back?

Drop in on us right quick - tomorrow, maybe? - and we'll show you the biggest bundle of high-powered Buick ever offered in America's low-price field.

Sickness And Injury Accident or health insurance payments and amounts you receive as ments and amounts you receive as compensation for your injury or sickness, are exempt from tax.

The new law also permits you to exclude from your income up to $100 a week of pay you received under a wage continuation plan while you were sick or injured, if it causes you to be absent from work. But there is a special rule work. But there is a special rule for sickness. The pay you receive for the first week of absence from work cannot be deducted unless you were hospitalized at least one day of the absence. The hospitalization does not have to fall within the first week of sickness; just sometime within the period of absence from work. This first week proviso does not apply in the case of absence due to injury.

The amount you may exclude from your income is limited to the amount of wages, or payments in amount of wages, or payments in lieu of wages, which you received for your absent time, but in no case may you exclude more than $100 per week.

A Few Examples:

If you are sick at home for seven

If you are sick at home for seven days or less, the pay you receive is fully taxable. If you are sick at home for more than seven days, the pay you receive for the time after the first week has run out may be excluded from your income—one-lifth of your weekly pay (but not more than $20) for each day missed, if you're on a 5-day week; one-sixth (but not more than $16.67) if you're on a 6-day week.

If you are hospitalized at least one day of your sickness, you may exclude from income the pay you receive for the entire period of sickness, up to the $100 per week limit.

If you are absent from work because of injury, your pay for the entire time may be excluded from your income; again, up to the $100 per week limit.

If you make any exclusion from your income for sickness or injury, be sure to attach a statement to your return explaining the circumstances.

The 1954 law cut taxes on your income from dividends in two ways. It allows you to exclude the first 350 of dividends you receive during the year, and it allows you a cerdit against your tax, up to 4 per cent of the amount of dividends above 350.

Generally speaking, this liberalization applies to dividends paid on the capital stock of U. S. corporations:

It does not include so-called "dividends" paid on withdrawable savings accounts a savings and loan associations. The are treated as interest income. Dividends paid by mutual life insurance companies on their policies and by the Veterans Administration on Gi life insurance policies are nothing more insurance policies are nothing more than reductions of premiums paid and are not considered income for and are not considered income for tax purposes.

A Few Examples:

A stockholder received $40 qualifying dividends last year. He reports this but need not pay tax on it. because the law lets him exclude up to $50 of dividends. A stockholder received $100 of dividends last year. He reports the $100, excludes $50 and pays tax on the other $50. On the $50 included in taxable income, he can take 4 per cent of it as credit against his final tax liability.

A man received $60 in dividends and his wife received $40. He reports $60, excludes $50 and pays tax on $10, and takes the 4 per cent credit on the taxed amount. She credit on the taxed amount. She reports and excludes her entire $40. She may not apply her unused exclusion of $10 to her husband's $10, even though they file a joint return.

Retirement Pay and Annuities

Provisions for this type of income are somewhat like those for dividends; you need not pay tax on part of it, and you may be able to claim a tax credit for some of the amount you do pay tax on.

You need not be retired to enjoy these tax benefits, but in some cases you must be 65 or older.

Generally speaking, any contributions you made towards a pension through the years comes back to you tax-free.

sion through the years comes back to you tax-free.

On the other hand, if your employer footed the bills, you are probably taxable for the payments as you receive them now. However, if you paid taxes on the contributions he was making to your pension fund, or if you otherwise paid part of the cost, you may now receive tax-free the share you paid in.

Those are the general rules for pension or annuity income for which you are not taxable. The law also provides rules for the amounts on which you do pay tax.

Under certain conditions, it allows you a credit against your tax. The credit is 20 per cent of your retirement income, up to a maximum of $240 per person.

To be eligible for this credit, you must have reached 65 by the ond of the year (unless you were a civilian employee of the federal, or a state or local government; and are receiving income under a public retirement system).

If you are 65 or older, retirement income, for the purpose of computing your tax credit, includes pensions, annuities, interest, divi-

"I see," he said. "Do you still figure on doing the autopsy on Frank? Don't seem to be much point now." He was watching me from the corner of one eye. "Who'll they pay the money to?"

"Nobody, I guess. They just want to close their file, one way or the other."

"Seems like a waste." He stopped and squinted at me in the sunlight. "So Wilbur and Doc was Fails to Find against it?"

I nodded. "Wilbur's afraid it might hurt his business, and the doctor thinks his professional reputation is being questioned."

On our knees we searched a wide area, but we didn't find any cartridge cases. "Needle in the haystack," the sheriff said finally. He stood up slowly, grunting as he straightened his back, moved to the target and ripped it off the tree. "My work's cut out," he said viciously. "Now I've got to check every family around here who got boys with .22 rifles, boys who was in the woods behind the Osborn place today. I got to find who made this target. Then I'll have a scared boys, maybe two or three scared boys, all of 'em shooting target, and then what have you got?" He gazed at me fiercely, chewing on his dead cigar.

He laughed. "I can see you're a dog man. So am I, but I like cats, too." He leaned down and scratched the cat's ears. "What's your name, cat? Tabby?"

"That's trite," I said, grinning.
"That cat has character. Let's call her Rosemary."

her Rosemary."

He picked up the cat and stroked her. "Hello, Rosemary. I think you'll like the jail house."

He put the cat down. "Well," he sighed, "I'd better lock up here for Alice. I'll call her sister when I get back to the office. What's her name?' "Mrs. Louis Woodruff," I said.

"Fort Wayne."
"How'd you know that?" He was watching me with his sharp old eyes.

"I saw a letter she wrote to Mrs.
Osborn. It was in a drawer of the telephone table."

"Well, well," he said. "Find anything else in there?"

"Just some love letters from Wilbur Tweed and Dr. Jarrett."

I grinned at him.
"Did some snooping, huh? After you found her?"
"A little," I admitted.

I nodded. "Wilbur's afraid it might hurt his business, and the doctor thinks his professional reputation is being questioned."

"Doc's the coroner. Don't he have the say-so?"

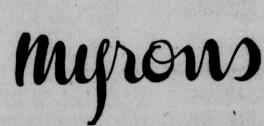

"Ordinarily, but this is a little different." I wanted to get him off the subject and I started walking toward the woods.

He came up beside me. "Look, do you figure there was maybe—uh—foul play? I mean, about Frank Osborn?"

"Please, Sheriff," I said, grinning at him, "you've been reading too many detective novels."

"I read a lot of 'em," he admitted. "Lucy is always giving 'em to me."
